Read the feature topic on Book Week in today's ED! Magazine and complete some of the activities below.

- Who coined the term 'gloriumptious'?
- What book won the CBCA Book of the Year award this year?
- According to Meg McKinlay, why is CBCA Book Week important to authors?

- What is your favourite book of all time? What have you read recently that inspired you or made you think?
- Create a class brainstorm of benefits of reading, then search online for what the experts say and add their ideas to your brainstorm.
- How do you celebrate CBCA Book Week at your school? If you were in charge, would you run the event differently?

- Some people have turned reading and reviewing books into a career. Search online for advice on how to become a book critic, and write down three pointers.

- Have you read any of the books that are featured in today's ED! article? If so, what did you think of it? If not, which of the books would you like to read the most?

- Emily Rodda used several paintings as inspiration for her story, The Glime. Working with a friend, choose a selection of photos or illustrations and challenge each other to weave a story that links them together.

- Reviews for children's books can be found in the ED! section of The West Australian. If you were the Editor, which section of the newspaper would you insert a review for an adult's general fiction book?

Join The West's Media Education team in our aim to create a media-savvy generation.

Online Media Education activities are designed to enable students to become critical consumers of news. Through completing the activities, students will develop the skills to consider, question, inquire and challenge reported news stories. Media Education encourages students to be informed citizens of global issues considering multiple perspectives before generating their own ideas and opinions.
